"COTTER'S SATURDAY NIGHT"

Adaptation of Scottish Bard's Well-known Poem Presented Under Auspices of Clan Johnston Before Appreciative Audience Last Friday Night.

"The Cotter's Saturday Night" as presented by the Scottish Musical Comedy company of Boston in the town hall last Friday evening eclipsed all musical treats heretofore presented under the auspices of Clan Johnston.

The sketch was constructed by John E. Daniels who used the poem of Burns as a vehicle for the introduction of Scottish songs and stories and the delineation of Scottish character.

Mr. Daniels who took the part of John Anderson, the cotter, opened with "John Anderson, my Jo", and Jeanne Hunter Tanner, as the cotter's wife, touched the hearts with a wonderful rendition of that song. Daniel Ross as Tammas Cuthbertson had a fund of stories which delighted the audience.

Many songs were interwoven with the neighborly chat of the visitors at the cotter's on Saturday night, and Jeanne, the cotter's daughter, and Robert Douglas, the laird's son, were the subjects of much good natured banter. Margaret Alexander and Victor Gilbert took these parts and scored in their duet "O Wert Thou in the Cauld Blast," with the gallant laird's son's plaid as a shelter from the angry blast. Mr. Gilbert also sang "Oh! a' the Airts" and "Loch Lomond," and Miss Alexander was effective in "My Laddie."

John Daniels appeared in "Bonnie Mary," and captivated the audience with "Hurrah for the Highlands," "Duncan Grey," was sung with fine effect by Arthur Gould.

The ensemble numbers "Ye Banks and Braes," "Annie Laurie" and "Scots Who Ha'e," were greatly enjoyed, and a Scotch Reel with "Tammas Cuthbertson" as the fiddler, gave an added touch of realism.

MISS FRASER AT ABBOT

Noted Englishwoman Discusses Problems of World Interest in Address Before Students.

"There is nothing short of actual separation that our people would not give Ireland to bring about a settlement of the Irish question," said Miss Helen Fraser at Abbot academy last Friday night when she made her first public address since landing in America last week. Miss Fraser expressed herself as in favor of restricted armament and the cancellation of the war debts of the allies.

The speaker discussed political conditions in England during and since the war, touching upon the points of similarity and difference between the British and American forms of government. As our congress is made up of the Senate and House of Representatives so the British Parliament is made up of the House of Lords and the House of Commons. It is with the latter body that sovereignty rests. It has the power to change every law, to change the succession to the throne or to make a republic. The British government has not the system of checks and balances such as ours, which requires the election of a president every four years. The House of Commons which came out in 1918 went in in 1910, being able to alter the ruling that the house should come out every five years.

The mistaken idea was dispelled that prevails on this side of the Atlantic

TEXTILE MAN HONORED

Alexander Lamont Tendered Luncheon by Officers and Fellow-Workers of Smith & Dove Co.

Fifty years of continuous service rendered by Alexander Lamont as head of the flax dressing department of the Smith and Dove Manufacturing company was recognized by his employers when he was tendered a luncheon on Wednesday noon.

With him as guests of honor were James Soutar and Barnett Rogers, and Alexander Dick of 86 Salem street South Lawrence, three of the nine Scotsmen who came to Andover fifty years ago and all former employees of the company.

No intimation of the plans to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of his connection with the company had reached Mr. Lamont, and at noon when he was invited to the dining room in the remodeled Howarth house his surprise was genuine as the officials of the company past and present oversaw, and members of the office force as well as his old colleagues greeted him.

Covers were laid for thirty-five and luncheon was served by caterer Weigel.

Henry A. Bodwell, treasurer of the company, as toastmaster paid a fine tribute to the worth of the service which Mr. Lamont had given the company during fifty years. In behalf of the Overseers Club, Arthur T. Boutwell presented the honored guest with a handsome reclining chair. President George F. Smith also presented Mr. Lamont with a substantial gift in behalf of the company, and Mr. Bodwell made Mr. Lamont a gift of a beautiful diamond studded service pin.

Speeches were made by Walter M. Lamont and Barnett Rogers.

Mr. Lamont was deeply touched by the significance of the occasion and the gifts but thanked the officials, his associates and friends.

Besides Mr. Lamont, special guests present included: Walter M. Lamont, agent of the Wood mill, Alexander Dick, James Soutar, William C. Coutts, Alexander Brown, Thomas, David and Bay.

A play entitled "Rev. Peter Brice Bachelor" was successfully presented by members of the Mothers' Club in Pynchard hall last evening. Selections by the school orchestra, songs by Miss Mary Caldwell and readings by Mrs. Hubert Mayo completed the program.

A few words of greeting were spoken by the president of the club, Mrs. Carrie S. Buchanan who welcomed all those present and invited the mothers to join the club which is striving to bring the school and the home into closer relationship and working for the best interest of the child.

The selections rendered by the school orchestra with Miss Frances Morgan as concert mistress were very well received. This was the first time that the orchestra has played at a public entertainment this season. Its members are as follows: Helen Otis, piano; Doris Champion, assistant at the piano; Frances Morgan, Frances Garrett, Edward Fritchard, Marie Brady, Selda Billington, violins; Teresa Proctor, mandolin; Louis Soderberg, traps; Virginia Ramehall, flute; Clyde Mearns, drum.

Miss Caldwell sang "Home O' Mine" and "The Radiance in Your Eyes" and responded to an encore with "Annie Laurie." Miss Marion Boody was her accompanist.

Humorous readings, "Taking an Elevator" and "The Colored Wedding" were contributed by Mrs. Hubert Mayo. The latter selection, which is original with Mrs. Mayo, was given in costume and accompanied with fancy steps.

The sketch which depicted the hopes and heart burnings of the sentimental female parishioners of the Rev. Peter Brice, bachelor, both abruptly dispelled by the unexpected announcement from the widow Prince that she is to be his bride was well presented by members of the club. Costumes of a past generation lent interest to the performance.

The program:

TREMONT

Only the coming week remains of the engagement of "Little Old New York" at the Tremont Theatre, Boston, a fact which should act as the liveliest of spurs to theatregoers who seek real amusement. The reception to this play by Bostonians has been most flattering to the attraction and indicates that the qualities of Rida Johnson's comedy and the delightful personality and acting of Genevieve Tobin, the dainty young star, have the most potent of drawing powers. Registering an instantaneous hit when first presented in Boston three weeks ago, there has been a succession of crowded houses since its advent. This condition is the highest of testimonials of its attributes. And now that the show departs on Saturday, November 5, those who plan to attend must be reminded that only a few performances are at their disposal.

The story tells of a bewitching little Irish impostor, who had come to New York of a hundred years ago to claim a fortune that had been left to her dead brother. She was really an Irish lassie disguised to represent her brother, following out a scheme concocted by her father, who hates the Delevans and is fearful lest the fortune should revert to one of their number, should they learn of the death of the girl's brother, in Ireland.

It is the sort of play that the young like because it is sweet and interesting, and the sort the elders like because it makes them youngsters. With the scenes set in the New York of 1810, the era of the genial Washington Irving, it seems easy to transport oneself into the atmosphere of that period and feel that one is really living and mingling with the fashionable celebrities of that time. The regular Wednesday and Saturday matinees are given. Seats are on sale for all performances.

SAN CARLO GRAND OPERA

For the opening performance of the two weeks subscription season at the Boston Opera House of the San Carlo Grand Opera, which commences on November seventh, Fortune Gallo, the general director, has selected Madame Esther Ferrabini, to sing the title role of Carmen. real triumph in this role and was acclaimed by the critics as the "greatest Carmen of the present day."

A special feature of this performance will be the appearance of Sylvia Tell, and the ballet and the orchestra of fifty from the Manhattan Opera House under the baton of Carlo Peroni, formerly of the Saint Cecilia Orchestra of Rome and a conductor who has been seen in virtually every leading opera house in Italy.

The subscription books are closed and the seats are now on sale at the Little Building Ticket Office and the Boston Opera House. The advance subscription sale amounts to more than $25,000.00.

The Tuesday night opera will be "La Boheme" in which Anna Fittzu, one of the San Carlo guest artists, who is well known for her appearances with the Chicago and Metropolitan operas as well as a great concert favorite, sings the role of Mimì.

The ever popular Faust will be the matinee bill on Wednesday and Sofia Charlebois, the beautiful California soprano who created a sensation in Italy, will be heard for the first time in Boston as Marguerite.

The first appearance in this city of Josephine Lucchese, the young coloratura soprano who proved the sensation of the season in New York will be in "Rigoletto" on Wednesday evening with another new tenor, Joseph Corallo, as the Duke. Another Boston debut that evening will be that of Gaetano Viviano, the baritone who also is a discovery of Impresario Gallo.

"La Forza Del Destino" is the Thursday night opera and Bianca Saroya, whose splendid dramatic soprano voice was often heard with the Boston Opera will be the Donna Leonora with Tommasini making his second appearance as Don Alvaro.

On Friday evening Marie Rappold, another guest artist, will sing "Aida," a role that she has become so identified with that her performance is a standard of measurement.

The first Saturday matinee will be "Madame Butterfly" with Anna Fittzu as the Japanese girl and Romeo Boscacci as Pinkerton, Graham Marr as Sharpless, and Ada Paggi as Suzuki.

The closing bill of the first week will be the ever popular favorite "Il Trovatore" with Miss Saroya and Tommasini in the leading roles.

That the San Carlo organization intends to give Boston a season of real grand opera is assured by the fact that capacity houses prevail at virtually every performance of the New York season and the critics there are enthusiastic in their praise. The same artists, chorus, ballet, orchestra and directors that appear in New York will positively be heard and seen at the Boston Opera House. It also will be a real social event as many of the former box holders of the San Carlo season.

Automobiles Wrecked on Reading Road

Last Friday night two autos crashed on the Reading road opposite the residence of Atty. Joseph L. Burns. Both machines were badly damaged and although one was overturned on the street car tracks, the occupants in neither machine were injured.

The accident happened shortly after 8 o'clock when the auto of Sumner S. Gordon of Providence, R. I., driven by its owner who was accompanied by Fred Engle also of Providence, collided with the machine of Irving I. Dillon of 9 Stevens street, Lawrence. Mrs. Dillon was in the car with her husband. The Gordon machine was overturned but miraculously, Mr. Gordon and Mr. Engle escaped injury. Both machines were badly damaged.

CLOGGED BLOOD WITHERS THE BODY

Workers Sick and Weak from Exertion Take Gude's Pepto-Mangan

Men and women who toil, either physically or mentally, use up energy. When they overwork they use up more energy, and sometimes the blood gets in a run-down condition. Without rest the blood cannot get back to normal, so that it becomes clogged with waste matter from over-exertion.

The clogged blood virtually withers the body. The strained looks on pale faces, the thin, bloodless arms, the sunken cheeks and necks, the dead-tired feeling, are the results of stale blood depriving the system of life-giving oxygen.

Workers go to the drug store and get Gude's Pepto-Mangan when they feel weak and run down. They take it in either the liquid or the tablet form. That makes the blood rich and red and drives out the poisons. Life-giving oxygen, carried by the little red cells, renews the strength and builds up the entire system. Look for the name "Gude's Pepto-Mangan" on the package. Advertisement.

HERE AND THERE

In connection with the Simmons College drive for the purpose of raising a million dollar endowment fund, the publicity bureau this week issued a release concerning the ideas of certain of the undergraduates on such questions as "should women smoke," "what is the proper minimum wage on which it is safe to close a marriage contract," "should office managers discriminate against girls with bobbed hair," etc.

In view of the fact that the writer recently had occasion to visit the "college on the dump" for more or less business reasons, this advertisement of Simmons graduates as good better halves contains some material.

To quote, "Simmons girls anticipating matrimony, are not out for 'rich' husbands, but agree upon $2,000 as a minimum for the young married couple today." Aside from the surprising fact that this little group of maids have gotten together and agreed to cry "sold" for a paltry 2000 bucks a throw, that little phrase "out for" leads us to a firm resolve to keep our own healthy carcasses as far as possible from the confines of Simmons' halls of learning. Not that any great superfluity of manly beauty makes life particularly dangerous for us, but when several hundred willful, versatile, and, since they are women, not over scrupulous young women resolve unanimously to go "out for" something, mere man, with the possible exception of Solomon, is as a tiny stick in a hurricane, overwhelmed.

However, we looked them over the other day. Small wonder it is that the bobbed-hair clause receives such wonderful support. All kinds of it. Golden hair, stringy with all the beauty of combed hemp, stringy on top and obviously fresh from the iron below, short, above a much powdered neck (we sometimes suspect the powder manufacturers of having a strong hand in the recent rise of the fad), short and long in spots, thick and thin; and one little damsel in the golden class, with a quirky nose and half a mouth and a perfect shock of wavy sunshine on her head who obviously had the "real wavy kind," and who was probably as a result, president of her class. There were just as many classes of brunettes.

It strikes us that bobbed hair must have at least one good point about it. It is so much extra labor that the b. h. stenog. should surely be fully awake by the time she has spent a couple of hours performing her morning ritual. I understand however, that rainy weather now causes exactly forty percent more ugly dispositions and bad tempers than previously, despite the great increase in general well-being and happiness which the fad has brought to the members of that ancient and honorable society, the Knights of Jesse James, the barbers. They say, you know, that Jesse had many hair-raising and hair-breath escapes.

What we originally started out to prove was that these little schemers, being women, have a little catch up their sleeve. They lay out this nice tempting minimum of $2000, which isn't so tempting to some of us, and they apparently believe what they say. List! "The business woman should be dressed attractively and not necessarily in 'tailored things' for business." And as father said when he gazed lovingly at the bottle of Sloan's Liniment, "Aye, there's the rub." One fair little bunch confided her expenditures for the last week to us. "One fur coat, suitable for good weather wear, (a drop of rain would spoil it) $276.00; one blue crepe dress (absolutely the latest thing, and a wonderful bargain), $29.65; one pair of perfectly good suede shoes (the toes barked after one wearing) $9.00 marked down from $23.00; unmentionables ('the styles change so frequently you know'—which we didn't), $22; and what we gathered was a rather inferior hat, suitable only for wear in a bargain rush or when expecting a hail storm, $19.98.

You of course gather what a nice healthy mortgage this would put on hubby's earnings for the next two months. What in blazes the happy family exists on for these two months is rather outside our humble power to conceive. And by that time, it would have rained on the fur coat, the suede shoes would look like a skinned rabbit, the blue dress would long since become out of date, along with the u.m.s., and Filene's would have had at least two bargain sales. One doesn't have to be a C. P. A. to figure out the net result.

We are not attempting to pick the girls of this one college from out the class and say these are such and so, and the rest are not. Far from it. Our own opinion is quite to the contrary. It merely happens that it fell to our lot to perform an exposé of this one group because said group happened to advertise contrary to our ideas on the subject.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER COMPANY
149 William Street, New York

How to make it

Use level measurements for all materials

1/2 cup shortening
1/2 cup sugar
1 egg and 1 yolk
2 1/2 cups flour
4 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
1 cup milk
1/4 square (1 1/2 oz.) of unsweetened chocolate (melted)
1/4 teaspoon salt

Cream shortening. Add sugar and ground orange rind. Add beaten egg yolks. Sift together flour, salt and Royal Baking Powder and add alternately with the milk; lastly fold in one beaten egg white. Divide batter into two parts. To one part add the chocolate. Put by table spoonfuls, alternating dark and light batter, into three greased layer cake pans. Bake in moderate oven 30 minutes.

FILLING AND ICING

3 tablespoons melted butter
3 cups confectioner's sugar
(Powdered sugar may be used but does not make so smooth icing)
Ground rind of 1/2 orange and pulp of 1 orange
2 tablespoons orange juice
1 egg white
3 squares (3 oz.) unsweetened chocolate
Put butter, sugar, orange juice and rind into bowl. Cut pulp from orange, removing skin and seeds, and add. Beat all together until smooth. Fold in beaten egg white. Spread this icing on layer used for top of cake. While icing is soft, sprinkle with unsweetened chocolate shaved in fine pieces with sharp knife (use 1/4 square). To remaining icing add 2 1/2 squares unsweetened chocolate which has been melted. Spread this thickly between layers and on sides of cake.

Claims He Was Assaulted

George Kauplan of Blanchard St., Tewksbury, called at the Police station Saturday and told Chief Smith that he had been assaulted by two foreigners, who had threatened him with a gun.

In the scuffle, Kauplan was beaten over the head, and he had both his hands cut in wrestling the rifle from his assailants. He wanted a warrant issued for their arrest, but as his house was just over the Tewksbury line, and the assault was committed in that town, Chief Smith after having his wounds dressed, advised him to take up the matter with the Tewksbury police.

Marriage

October 26, 1921 by Rev. Markham W. Stackpole at the Phillips Academy chapel, Edwin Lawrence Noble and Susan Phillips, both of Somerville.

Tribute to C. H. A.

Miss Charlotte Helen Abbott was a familiar figure to all who had business in Andover Square, but perhaps no place in the centre of town saw her more frequently than the Memorial Hall Library.

For the past fifteen years, she was literally an almost daily visitor. Not until her health began to fail did a day pass when she did not enter the reading room once and sometimes twice. No one in town appreciated the library more than she, nor made better use of its privileges.

She could not afford to buy many books but she fairly reveled in the library. Her sense of ownership was so great that it was always "we" and "our" when she spoke of its management. When the library was reorganized, the barriers taken away, and people admitted to open shelves, her satisfaction knew no bounds.

With a mind trained to research, she would track to its uttermost stronghold any subject which attracted her interest, and her interests were legion. It might be a fern, or a beetle, or a geographical expedition, or an historical date, each day it was something new, and her enthusiasm never failed.

Poor in worldly goods, no one knew better than she how to enrich her life by intangible things. The evening star, a flaming sunset, a bunch of wild flowers, were pleasures not only to enjoy but to share with every one she met. She came into the library one day, wreathed in smiles. "I feel like Rockefeller," she said, "because everybody has such a beautiful garden this fall!"

When she read a book, she lived in it; she was a part of its events. And having read, she was sure to pass it on. She spread the gospel of books to the extent of carrying unasked to others, volumes she herself enjoyed. Many a book was added to the library shelves simply because Miss Abbott wanted it so much. When periodicals were purchased for circulation, she was delighted. "I feel so rich," she said, "with the Atlantic to take home."

Miss Abbott was herself so sincere and so absolutely natural, that no pretense nor pose could escape her keen observation. In a few, dry, trenchant phrases, original and unforgettable, she would characterize a person, an event, or a story. Her remarks were always clever, often most amusing. She had the spirit of a crusader. If she saw something she thought needed adjusting, she set out to do it, alone and undaunted. More than once, Miss Abbott, annoyed by loafers persistently sitting on the library wall, routed them single-handed. Yet in spite of her critical mind, she was always quick to do a kindness and appreciative of any done to her. Sometimes, in a rare moment of expansion, she would make an unexpected and pathetic confidence, revealing under a brusque manner, a sensitive and fine nature.

There is in the Memorial Hall a framed photograph of a boy who fell in the Civil War. Every Memorial Day, Miss Abbott placed before this picture, on a little shelf made for the purpose, a dish of moss and wild flowers. It was the object of her anxious care. The Memorial Day just past, fell on Monday. On the previous Saturday afternoon, Miss Abbott struggled up a stair at a time, and arranged that offering of love. On Saturday evening she came into the library and sank wearily into a seat. Inquiry disclosed her fear that the evergreen had already withered and that she didn't know as she could climb that stair again.

She did not climb it. Someone else ran up and reported the evergreen in perfect condition. The janitor promised to replenish the water on Sunday, and Miss Abbott, for the first time in her life, shared that duty with others.

She will not be here next Memorial Day, but the dish will be filled, and if possible, with the false Solomon seal she liked best to place there.

New Skating Rink for Phillips Academy

The trustees of Phillips academy have contracted to build a new hockey rink out beyond the track on Salem street. Already workmen are engaged in the work and assistance is being given by members of the student body who are allowed "cuts" from their athletic work to help get the construction finished before the snow flies.

When the new place for the winter sport is completed, a much more desirable place for hockey games will be secured than the Rabbit's pond rink. In the latter place, snow on the surface made fast skating a thing of peril, and spectators were always in danger of wet feet or being plunged into the icy waters of the pond when a game was in progress. Water leaked in from the outside and the members of both home and visiting teams had to put on their skates in the cold, sloppy field adjoining Rabbit's. The new rink will have strong sideboards and will be flooded by a hose and assures the team of a modern up-to-date place for skating and hockey.

Dynamite Must be Guarded

As a measure of extraordinary precaution, dynamite stored in town must be guarded night and day and the order issued by the State department of public safety has been put into effect by Charles F. Emerson, chief of the fire department who has checked up all dynamite stored in town. Only three contractors have dynamite in storage and the following order has been sent to each one.

Boston, Mass.,
October 24, 1921.

You are hereby ordered, in accordance with section 120 of the regulations of the Department of Public Safety on explosives to forthwith guard the magazine containing any explosives in your possession night and day until further orders from this department, and report the result of your action as soon as possible.

SECTION 120
Where explosives are stored under a permit, the Chief of the District Police, or the official who has granted a permit for such storage, may in his discretion, at any time he thinks it necessary for public safety, require that such explosives be removed to some other location approved by the said chief or said official, or that a watchman be placed continuously day and night over such explosives. Per order of State Fire Marshal By Charles F. Emerson, Chief Andover Fire Department.

Miscellaneous Shower

Last Friday evening a miscellaneous shower was held for Miss Agnes Culpan at the home of Miss Rose Lafaver on Main St. The house was prettily decorated for the occasion and the bride-to-be received many beautiful gifts including kitchen furnishings, linen, cut glass and silver.

It was announced that the annual inspection of the Corps will take place on Tuesday evening, November 22.

At the social hour, a peanut hunt was enjoyed under the direction of the entertainment committee, of which Mrs. B. Frank Hatch is chairman.

LIFE, perfect, limitless; with a regenerated race; on a restored earth; with a corrected climate and life-perpetuating food; under a Government which will satisfy the righteous desires of every living creature. And it's HERE, at the door! The portals of the new age are swinging open and many will enter and never die.

Is it any wonder that we have to tell it again and again? How could one in possession of this priceless knowledge remain silent? The very stones would cry out! You can by no means afford to let business or pleasure or anyone deprive you of the solace and benefits enjoyed by those who have investigated this timely and heart cheering message. The opportunity is provided in the lecture by

Mr. W. A. H. Wells of Providence at Town Hall, Andover, Sunday, Oct. 30, at 3 p.m.

This lecture has comforted multitudes bereaved by the world war, epidemics, and attending sorrows. Charlotte Helen Abbott

The first news of the death of Charlotte Helen Abbott came to the writer on his return from the west Wednesday, the 26th. It is doubtful if any one in Andover could have felt the shock more severely, as through her pen Miss Abbott had for the entire life of the Townsman been a close associate of all the interests that have gone to make up the weekly story that the Townsman has carried to Andover people. Not every week, but certainly as often as every month, something has appeared in the Townsman columns from her pen, and she has never written a word that did not in her own peculiar way contribute something of value to the thought of the community.

prized of any that appeared in those columns for many years, and the fund of information that she had gathered, relating to practically every family of any importance claiming a relationship to the town of Andover, became of enormous proportions. Miss Abbott was a tireless worker, giving of her whole self to anything that she was interested in, with no thought of personal comfort or profit, the sole key to her service being a desire on her part to render the best that was in her.

While many feel it unfortunate that in some way she could not have had around her in her last hours friends who would desire to make her passing on more easy, it seems to the writer that she closed her work as she would wish. In the midst of the almost countless memoranda, thoroughly understood by her but almost unintelligible to everybody else, without thought of her own personal comfort because she was so absorbed in the things she was doing for other people, one can feel that she had no suffering, but as one tired out, jotted her last memorandum and finished her own story of a long and useful life, in her own individual way.

A Special Meeting

The town meeting called for next Tuesday should attract the attendance of every voter who can possibly be present. Special town meetings are always to be avoided wherever possible, and only under emergency should they be held. Without question the one called for next Tuesday is amply justified by the emergency conditions.

The article providing for consideration of an offer to be made by Mr. Wood for the remaining portion of the town farm may very properly be given generous consideration, but should result in only one way, and that a fair and reasonable adjustment of the situation so that Mr. Wood may be provided with the section of land which he so much needs for the best development of his present plans in Shawheen Village. It is not in the least an issue between a citizen and the town at large. It is wholly a question of right co-operation on the part of the town with an agency that is doing an enormous development job to the advantage of the town. It would not seem necessary to give very much discussion to this proposition, which is sure to be fair on account of the source from which it is to come.

In the same way, there is little to be said about the second question of further extension of the sewerage system in Shawheen Village. The buildings have been erected and they are in great need of connections that have only partially been provided. There should be no difficulty in adjusting this situation to the best interests of the town, which will be served by serving the village.

Undoubtedly the time has come when the town should take more time in the discussion of town matters at the regular annual town meeting. Toward this end the best contribution could be a division of the work in such a way that public matters would be discussed at a meeting supplementary to the regular election time.

While all three matters would seem to be pretty one-sided as to the merits involved, we must still urge the importance of a large attendance, that the whole public may have a part in taking action, even though it be one-sided.

To Attend Dinner Given Leaders of Allied Armies

F. Abbott Goodhue, son of Mrs. F. A. Goodhue of School street, and president of the International Acceptance Bank of New York City, is a member of the civilian committee organizing a dinner to be given in honor of French, British, Italian and Belgian officers among the most distinguished leaders of Allied Armies who are members of the Military Board of Allied Supply, at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, this evening.

The Military Board of Allied Supply was organized after the appointment of Marshal Foch as Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Armies in France to coordinate the services of those armies.

The purpose of the approaching meeting of the board in this country is to agree upon a report which will present a composite picture of the supply and transportation systems of the Allied Armies in France as they existed at the time of the Armistice. The staffs of the different armies have been engaged upon this great work for the last two years, and the publication of their report which will be made in all the allied countries will be an invaluable contribution to the literature of the allied effort in the great war.

All the members of the committee who are organizing the dinner held official positions in France during the last year of the war that brought them in contact with the Military Board of Allied Supply. Mr. Goodhue was a member of the special committee which went to Europe after the war to investigate financial credits in Europe.

General Pershing, General Harbord, Secretaries Mellon, Weeks and Hoover, Governor Miller and several of the ambassadors have indicated their intention of being present.

South Church Men's Club Opens Season

A supper prepared and served by the men in charge of V. D. Harrington followed by an entertainment given in the church vestry by Walter Eccles of Boston opened the season of the South Church Men's Club last Friday evening.

About one hundred members partook of the supper which was served at seven o'clock. The menu consisted of baked beans, boiled ham, pickles, rolls, coffee, cake, ice cream and fruit. Grace was said by Rev. E. Victor Bigelow.

The waiters, in charge of Fred E. Cheever were Edward Foster, Bancroft Pratt, Kenneth Palmer, George Dove, J. Ashley Barnes, Tyler Carlton, Joe Wright and Winsor Wade.

During the evening selections were rendered in a pleasing manner by the Shawheen orchestra composed of C. Frederickson, violin and leader; J. Frederickson, cornet; Murray Tuttle, piano, and Louis Soderberg, drums and traps. Humorous recitations and songs were rendered by Walter Eccles.

Edmond E. Hammond presided at the business meeting. Twenty-five applications for membership were received.

The officers of the club for the ensuing year are Edmond E. Hammond, president; Harlow C. Newall, vice president; L. M. Huntress, treasurer; Frank L. Brigham, secretary; Herbert E. Russell, Rev. E. Victor Bigelow and Joseph Higginson, executive committee.

Hallowe'en Party for Junior Helpers

A very successful Hallowe'en party was held by the Junior Helpers in the South church vestry last evening. About one hundred and fifty young people gathered to enjoy the good things prepared.

William M. Wood Makes Offer For Town Farm

A special town meeting will be held at the town house next Tuesday evening, November 1, at 7.30 o'clock for the purpose of hearing and acting upon a proposal to be submitted by William M. Wood for the purchase of the remainder of the Town Farm land; to see if the town will extend the sewerage system up Lowell street to Canterbury street; and to see if the town will accept the provisions of Section 20, Chapter 39 of the General Laws relative to precinct voting and the holding of the annual town meeting.

The Board of Selectmen are in receipt of a letter from William M. Wood stating that he is authorized by the Board of Directors of the American Woolen Co. to offer the sum of $15,000 for the land and buildings known as the Town of Andover Poor Farm situated in Shawheen Village. This offer is made with the understanding that the buildings may be used and occupied until provision can be made for the removal of the inmates not later than October 1, 1922.

At a meeting of the finance committee of Andover held to discuss this proposal it was the opinion of the committee that $15,000 was a fair price and it was VOTED: That in the opinion of the Finance Committee it is for the good interest of the Town to dispose of the balance of the Town Farm property to William M. Wood, for a fair price, and it is recommended that the Selectmen shall take all necessary precautions for the proper housing of the inmates of the Town Farm before transferring the title to the property.

It was further recommended that a committee be appointed to investigate and report at the annual Town Meeting, next March, a plan for the care of the inmates of the Town Farm and that an appropriation of Five Hundred Dollars ($500) be made available for the use of said committee.

You might as well try to devise some better means of heating the surface of the earth from April to October than by the rays of the sun. That is an old invention of heating and will never be improved on while the world lasts, nor will any improvement ever be made upon warm air furnished by MAGEE ONE PIPE FURNACES."

The word MAGEE in conjunction with heating apparatus safeguards the intending purchaser. It stands for good material, expert workmanship in construction, and durability, economy, and ease of management in operation.

Have You a Letter Box?

Latest among the efforts of Postmaster General Will H. Hays to improve the postal service of the United States, is a campaign to insure the numbering of every house and to see that all houses are provided with letter slots or boxes. The absence of numbers on houses is one of the greatest causes of delay in mail delivery, especially at times when substitute carriers are on duty. The absence of mail slots or boxes is another cause for delay in delivery, since the service provides that the mail must not be shoved under a door, but must be delivered through a slot or in person.

Postmaster McDonald hopes to place Andover on the list of cities and towns who are 100 per cent equipped in these two particulars. On October 19, the carriers reported the addresses of all dwellings which were not equipped with slots and numbers and during the next week he will notify all these addresses by letter, requesting that they aid him in furnishing service to the town by complying with the suggestions made. Boxes, slots and numbers may be purchased from W. J. Morse, Buchan & Francis, and The Whatnot.

Elementary Sunday School Teachers Form Union

The Elementary Teachers of the Sunday Schools of Lawrence District were called together last night in the Free Church Primary rooms for the purpose of forming an Elementary Union, and considering the many things going on, the attendance was fair.

The Elementary Union was formed with the following officers: President, Mrs. Thaxter Eaton, Andover; Secretary, Mrs. E. E. Perry Andover; Treasurer, Miss Marian Auty, Lawrence. The purpose of the Union is to promote the community spirit of the churches and do for the churches and districts what one church could not do alone. Back of the District is the State Association whose work is to organize the District Associations and help them in their work for the Sunday Schools and Community. Mrs. Viola Vinton Morris is the State Superintendent of Children's work and stands ready at any time to come to any church in the State giving help and expert advice. Back of the State Association is the great International Sunday School Association (U. S. and Canada.) Without its help the State could not do its proper work in support of the District Activities. Mrs. Maud J. Baldwin is the International Superintendent of Children's work.

The Lawrence Elementary Union does not take any one away from his own church but aims through working together to get all the children within the District into Sunday School.

The South church was represented by twenty-four delegates and members and the Free church by nineteen.

Obituary

HELEN PEARSON BARNARD

Mrs. Helen Pearson Barnard, who died of pneumonia at her summer home, Sharon, Mass., Oct. 23d, was one who not only made her mark as a writer but who as wife, mother and friend left a memory rich in years of example and helpfulness.

Born in Hampton Falls, New Hampshire, in 1849 the daughter of a clergyman and of a then well-known writer, Emily Clemens Pearson, she early showed signs of literary ability. At the age of fourteen she wrote her first book "Roy's Search", a temperance story which was long one of the most sought in the Sunday school libraries. Later she took up short story writing and was a contributor to the "Youth's Companion" and other periodicals devoted to the young. Of her later Sunday school books, "Patty's Grand Uncle," "The Last of the Luscombs," "The Sheltered Stranger" and "The Boys of North Parish" were perhaps the best known.

As Secretary of the Women's Board of Missions in Boston she came in touch with Congregational mission work the world over and in which she kept an active interest during her life.

In 1874 she was married to E. Lawrence Barnard, of Andover, Mass., now Assistant Treasurer of the S. D. Warren Co., Boston.

She is survived by her husband, E. Lawrence Barnard, a brother, Henry Clemens Pearson, and seven children well known in various walks of life.

The funeral services were held at the Barnard home in Sharon and were conducted by the Rev. D. A. Newton, formerly pastor of the Free Congregational Church in Winchester, of which for many years she was a member. The interment was at Wildwood Cemetery, Winchester.

CHARLOTTE HELEN ABBOTT

At the funeral services for Miss Charlotte Helen Abbott held at the South Church on Thursday October 20, Rev. Markham W. Stackpole spoke in part as follows:

Miss Abbott was a character, vigorous and independent of mind and outspoken in expression. Her abundant activity and the intensity of her interests made her a distinct factor in the life of our town. She was deeply interested in the past, and especially in the events and the people connected with our own local history; and her fellow-citizens will remember with gratitude what she has done with voice and with ready pen to perpetuate our fine traditions.

But she was also alert with interest in the present. She loved our town with its fine trees and the beautiful countryside surrounding it; while as an observer or a participant, she shared heartily in its current activities.

Present people, both young and old, called forth her sympathies and her kindly attentions. Many individuals will long remember with appreciation her friendly calls and her welcome tokens of thoughtfulness. A personal incident may be gratefully recorded. With the camera which she prized so much, she had taken numerous pictures of local interest, and had bound them in a little booklet, made with her own hands. This she sent to me in France, as a reminder to me and to others of beloved home scenes and faces.

One of the central truths of our religion is the value of one human soul and the importance of our human life; and when one who had lived so long and so well among us, quietly passes from our midst and we feel anew the mystery of life and of death, it is this sense of the worth and wonder of the individual spirit that helps to assure us in the hope of its continuance in some finer mode of being and ever in God's keeping.

Buildings in Outlying Districts Destroyed by Fire

Unoccupied buildings on the old Shaw place just over the Tewksbury line were totally destroyed by fire early Sunday morning. The motor pump and emergency piece responded to an alarm rung in from box 62 at the corner of Lowell street and Lovejoy road at 12:25 a.m. The fire had been burning for some time and fanned by a high wind, the house was practically destroyed before the firemen arrived.

The flames spread to the adjoining woods threatening a house on the Andover side of the town line. By pumping water from the brook Chief Emers and his men were able to extinguish the fire in the ruins and place forest fire under control. As only two men from the Tewksbury department responded, the assistance from Andover was most timely.

It is believed that the fire was of incendiary origin. The premises were recently raided for moonshine. The fire department received a telephone message Monday that a house on was on fire on River road which is in West Andover. Box 73 was sounded and one piece of apparatus made the long run only to find that there was no fire in that vicinity.

In the meantime a second message called the rest of the apparatus to the camp of N. H. Harwood which is on River street, Ballardvale. The Ballardvale department also responded but the flames had gained such headway that it was impossible to save the building.

A still alarm called the fire department to Salem street Monday evening shortly after nine o'clock. Someone who had been burning leaves beside the road carelessly left the fire without extinguishing it and the flames were spreading among the dry leaves scattered on the ground.

James Gillespie Jr. assistant superintendent of the Tyer Rubber Company is to build a house on the Locke estate. Batters are up and work was begun this week.

SCOTCH ENTERTAINMENT

The most touching scene came at the end as the neighbors prepared to depart for their homes. Gathered around the table with "the big ha' Bible" as the cotter's guide in life, the company sang the first verse of "The Lord is My Shepherd." The psalm so dear to Scottish hearts. "John Anderson" repeated the remainder of the psalm—"through death's dark vale,"—with the company humming the tune. The accompaniments were effectively played by Mrs. Alice Pillsbury Gilbert.

The entertainment made an appeal not only to those of Scottish birth, but to all lovers of the songs of Robert Burns and a large audience was present on Friday evening.

Cast of characters:

Margaret Anderson, the cotter's wife
Jeanne Hunter Tanner
Jennie, the daughter
John Anderson, the totter
Robert Douglas the land's son
Jennie, the cotter's son
Tammie Cuthbertson, a neighbor

The entertainment was in charge of the following committee: John Elder, Alexander Valentine, W. A. R. Gordon, George B. Petrie, George Baxter, Robert Dobbie, John Caldwell, W. MacDermitt, James Skea and George Fyle.

The house was totally destroyed and the woodlot burned for forty-eight hours.

At a combined meeting of the Seaman's Friend Society and the Ladies' Aid Society of the West Church, officers for the year 1922 were elected for the Seaman's Friend Society and plans for the season were talked over by the Ladies-Aid. Providing sufficient interest is shown it is planned to start the class on the evening of November 3rd.

Mr. Carver aims to make his lectures as helpful and practical as possible, and ample time will be given for discussion and questions.

All persons interested in poultry raising should avail themselves of this opportunity to secure advice and information from a recognized authority on poultry raising.

The large amount of poultry and eggs consumed in Massachusetts and the small amount raised in comparison with the consumption, makes it of vital importance that the production of these foods be encouraged.

Residents of Andover will be welcome at the lectures.

One more Friday for Vassar!

Natural History Society to Hold Bird Night

Dr. John B. May of Cohasset will be the speaker at the annual bird night of the Andover Natural History society which is to be held in Punched hall, Tuesday evening, November 8. Dr. May is a member of the Boston society of Natural History, the Nuttall Ornithological club and the Brookline Bird club. He is also the director of the Winnetaska Canoeing Camps at Ashland, New Hampshire.

The bird talk will consist of intimate sketches of the lives of many of our feathered friends, the result of years of observation in the woods and fields and along the lakes and streams and by the seashore of New England.

Many of the colored slides with which the lecture will be illustrated are from original photographs; the remainder from pictures by the best-known bird painters of America.

A small admission fee will be charged

Farrar Concert in Lawrence

Many Andover people have arranged through the mail to get tickets for the concert by Geraldine Farrar and her concert company at the Colonial Theatre, Lawrence, a week from Sunday. Appearing with Miss Farrar are Ada Samoli, a harpist, and Edgar Schofield, a bass baritone who is well known for his Symphony Hall recitals.

EDGAR SCHOFIELD
Bass baritone

The Lawrence Chamber of Commerce, The Woman's Club, the Chadwick Club, and the rotary Club have all supported the concert which is generally regarded as the biggest event in the musical history of the city. Mrs. Knowlton of Bradford Academy has arranged to have her students attend as has Miss Parsons of Rogers Hall, Lowell and Miss Bailey of Abbot Academy.

Painting and Bust to be Placed in Public Schools

At the meeting of the selectmen held Monday afternoon, Nathan C. Hamblin, principal of the Punched high school and several of the trustees of the Memorial hall library appeared to advocate their claims to have the painting of Washington and the bust of Longfellow presented to the town by William H. Lemon and accepted at the last town meeting last March placed in the high school or the library. After hearing the petitioners, the board took the matter under advisement.

After due consideration the selectmen have offered the painting and statue to the school committee and formal action will be taken on the matter at the next regular meeting of the committee to be held November 8.

On Tuesday of this week, Dr. Conroy, chairman of the school board, Rev. Newman Matthews, Rev. F. A. Wilson and Edward Brooks viewed the rooms at the Memorial hall and the Punched school and it was decided to hang the painting in Punched hall and place the bust of Longfellow in the Stowe school.

Those who have the hanging of the picture in charge were fortunate in securing the advice of Mr. Brooks whose judgment in the matter was most valuable.

Free Church Notes

The next meeting of the Grenfell Chapter of X. B. K. will be held Tuesday evening, November 1, at 7 o'clock. At 7.30 the Fraternity will entertain members of the Alpha Phi Chi Sorority and other specially invited friends as their guests at a Halloween Social.

The Men's Discussion Class will continue its study of the Disarmament Conference and will discuss the aims and possibilities of the Conference especially as they have to do with France and Japan. The Men will meet in the main auditorium immediately after the morning service.

about the composition of the house of lords which, she said, is made up of spiritual and temporal peers. The former include the bishops and high ecclesiastics of the Episcopal church, while the latter consist not only of the descendants of the older lords but also of men who have made their mark in business, politics, foreign diplomacy and international affairs. The late queen Victoria elevated to the house of lords three hundred such men who did not spring from the older family stock. The recent enfranchisement of women was discussed, Miss Fraser pointing out that the privilege of woman suffrage in England is limited to women over thirty years of age. This restriction is, explained when one learns that there are 2,000,000 more women than men in England, due partly to the fact that 600,000 men were killed in the recent war, and partly to the facts that the mortality is greater among male infants, that women live on an average five years longer than men, and that many men are at work in other parts of the empire.

Because of these conditions women are faced with the problem of self support and are entering the professions in great numbers. The profession of law has been completely opened to women, and many are passing examinations for the bar with distinguished honors. A woman may now be a Justice of the Peace, trying minor cases and giving out licenses as well as sitting on juries. On the other hand, trade unions have shut women out from engineering and trades requiring skilled mechanical labor by a bill passed since the close of the war.

Of Lloyd George, Miss Fraser said, "He is a man of whose character no proper estimate can be given until he is dead. He is a man for whom you have either a liking or a strong dislike. Before the war, it was unsafe to introduce his name at a dinner party. A favorite conundrum was, 'What is the difference between an accident and a catastrophe?'" with the answer "If Lloyd George fell into the sea it would be an accident; if he were saved, it would be a catastrophe."

However, as he is about to visit this country in connection with the disarmament congress next month, the lecturer preferred to let her hearers form their own opinion of the man for themselves. Lloyd George is now the leader of the coalition and as such is likely to remain the head of the government for many years.

Touching upon the different parties in English politics, Miss Fraser explained the tenets of each, the Liberals, the Unionists, and the Labor party. The latter is made up of a combination of moderate labor men, socialists, communists and what is known as the guild socialists who have as their end the organization of society into groups according to a man's profession or trade, going back to the middle ages to resurrect the guild idea. However, as the labor party has only 76 representatives in the house of commons, it is not likely that they will assume a very important part in English politics for a long while.

She contrasted the coalition government which includes many parties with our Republican and Democratic administrations, adding that to a person coming in from outside the country it is difficult to discover the difference between Republicans and Democrats, aside from an issue of the moment, except that the Republicans are in power and the Democrats are not.

The Irish problem was likened by the speaker to that confronting the United States in the Sixties. The real fundamental point is the maintenance of the unity of the empire which is not in reality an empire but a commonwealth of nations. If Ireland broke away, South Africa, Egypt, and India, whose people are making for self-government, would ask for even greater power resulting, the speaker believed, in a splitting up of the empire, the destruction of the social fabric and even the breaking up of the family. The British Empire now includes people of every race and tongue, and federation and unity are necessary for accomplishment. The one hope of the world is not in selfishness of nationalities but in their living in unity and accord with one another. For these reasons England would grant Ireland anything short of separation.

Real effective limitation of armaments adequate for policing the world is advocated by Miss Fraser who has recently visited the war-ravaged countries of Europe. In countries where millions of people are half starved and great areas are an abomination of desolation, with everything clamoring for restoration, yet 71% of the national budgets are for armament. England's budget for armament, interest on debts and pensions amounts to 60% of the whole.

As regards the problem of unemployment, Miss Fraser questions how we are going to get any further with the present enormous load of debt. She believes the thing to do is to cut our losses and start again. These debts represent nothing but potential money. Everything they represent has been given. No one can fire another shot to win the war.

Miss Fraser paid a tribute to Lady Astor, a woman of American birth who was the first of her sex to have a seat in Parliament. In the opinion of English women she has done extremely well, being a person of great moral courage, daring to say what she thinks without fear. Mrs. Wintringham was the second woman to have a seat in Parliament, succeeding her husband. Miss Fraser wants to see yet another woman in parliament who takes her place without the background of a husband.

Miss Fraser quite evidently desired to cement the friendship between England and America and although she said she studiously avoided the expression "Anglo Saxon race" and "mother country" yet expressed the hope that these two great countries having common laws, language and literature might forget all surface and trivial differences, and realizing that the great truths of mind and spirit which they hold in common transcend all other realities grow into a deeper understanding which shall spread to all the nations of the world.

Shawsheen Village Football Team Defeats Atlantic

The Shawsheen Village Football Team defeated the Atlantic of Lawrence on Balmoral Field last Saturday afternoon by the score of 24 to 0. The score does not tell the great interest taken in the game from beginning to end, for despite the one sided tally, many fine plays were executed, which at times bordered on the spectacular.

Four touch-downs were made by the home team, two by Tetreau and one each by Stearns and Taylor. No goals were kicked after touchdowns. The game consisted of four 10 minute periods. The first touchdown was made by Tetreau in the first quarter on an end run. The second was made by Taylor who caught a forward pass and ran 30 yards to the goal post line near the end of the first quarter.

Stearns' touchdown was made by an end run in the second period. Tetreau made his second touchdown in the last period. There was no scoring in the third period. McCarthy was the star of the contest, making many great tackles and slowing up the offensive of the opponents considerably. Hart also played a strong game while filling the position of full back for the first time.

The Atlantic had a good team but the machine like playing of the Shawsheen boys was too much for the visitors who were completely outclassed.

Bergeron, l.g.
Suter, c.
Murphy, r.g.
Paige, r.t.
Poison, Taylor, r.e.

Shawsheen Team to Play Commercial A. C. Saturday

The Shawsheen Village Football team will oppose the Commercial A. C. of Lawrence, tomorrow afternoon on the Andover playfield. Manager Traynor had planned to hold the game in Shawsheen but with the return of the American Woolen Soccer team to home grounds tomorrow decided to hold the game on the high school field. Very little is known of the Commercial's team, but the team from the Village is expected to give a good account of themselves.

American Woolen Team Will Play Off Soccer Tie With Methuen and Bowling Team Will Oppose Lawrence Team

The American Woolen Soccer team will oppose the Arlington Mills team for the fourth consecutive Saturday on the Balmoral playing fields tomorrow. The game will be the play-off of last week's tie for the first round of the State Cup Championship.

Two and three weeks ago the Wool lads took the Methuen team into camp by a large score, but last Saturday the Methuen team almost succeeded in turning the tables coming out with a 2-2 tie. The play-off tomorrow should furnish good entertainment for lovers of the sport, with both teams in mid-season condition, Arlington anxious to score the win and American Woolen just as anxious to confirm their supremacy.

Glass, h. b.

Table grapes for the year around—the ambition of American horticulturists for years—is an accomplished fact with the United States Department of Agriculture this season. The first carloads of Panarita, the so-called Greek currant grape, recently developed in this country by the department, reached New York from California the latter part of July. Last autumn department viticulturists at Washington opened packages of Othello grapes fully three weeks after their arrival and found them in perfect condition.

The Panarita grape until recently was known in this country only as a dried currant, of which 30,000,000 pounds were imported annually from Greece. It is brought into perfect fruitage through a secret method carefully guarded by the Greeks and discovered by department workers very recently. The secret method is to girdle the vines while they are in bloom so as to keep the sap in the tops of the vines. The Panarita has unusual merit as a table grape, but, due to unfamiliarity on the part of the native American public, shipments to New York were largely purchased by the Greek population, who bought them eagerly.

Methuen Team Stages Comeback After Two Overwhelming Defeats and Holds Wool Lads Two All

The Arlington Mill and American Woolen Company Soccer Teams clashed last week for the third time in the first round of the State Cup series. The game ended a tie, two goals each. The Arlington eleven was very much improved over its form in earlier games. The latter team played well to a man. There was more cohesion in their play in every department. The passing was neatly executed and the defense was good.

The winning of the toss meant a great deal and American Woolen was fortunate in getting this luck, for with a high wind and a glaring sun behind them the Woolen boys made conditions pretty warm for their opponents. American Woolen was unfortunate in striking the upright post of the goals on several occasions, only to see the ball finally cleared or bound behind the goal line. Arlington opened the scoring that came from good work by Kelley, Rennie and Poole for Slicer to end in a first timer and brilliant goal. Ten minutes before half time Dundas got his usual, when he beat the defence and then finished by finding the net. With a few minutes to play, Hill placed prettily to Rennie who raced away sending over an accurate cross which found Poole waiting and he sent the ball smashing into the net, giving his team the lead near half time, 2 goals to 1.

With the wind and sun behind them it appeared much like the Arlington game in this period but Dundas broke away, eluded the opposition and sent over a well directed cross for Omerod to equalize.

Both teams played a good game and many were impressed with the Arlington team. Their chances seem much better to finish in the upper division than appeared early in the season.

On an early shot for goal Dundas had the hardest of luck, his try striking the cross bar. Omerod also played in tough luck, making a dandy shot that struck the upright, and rebounded across the goal mouth, finally going to one side. Gilmartin also made a valiant try but it went wide. Inch's try also struck the upright.

The line-up:

Purple gives something of the impression of black, but at times conveys the idea of elegance. This is probably due to its long association with royalty.

Go to Class by Underground Tunnels.

An underground tunnel system that has all the fascination of the catacombs, although it serves the less dramatic function of conveying heating pipes, is one of the chief attractions at Wellesley college.

It has just been completed and undergraduates are being permitted to ramble around under the 800-acre campus.

The tunnels are six feet high and wide enough for comfortable walking. Girls have found that no matter how cold the weather, it is a good plan to abandon coats when taking this long adventure. The temperature from the heating pipes is about that of a Turkish bath.
